Sept. 16: “Blood on the Border, The Battle of Baxter Springs, KS” by Charles F. Harris,

Author, Attorney-at-Law

Overview of Kansas-Missouri border war culminating with Battle of Baxter Springs. Charlie had relatives that fought on both sides of the KS-MO border war. He has written 3 books on this war.

Sept. 23: “The Realities of Great War Aviation”

William “Bill” E. Fischer, Jr., Historian at Fort Scott; Retired Air Force Officer

This presentation is sponsored by the Kansas Humanities Council - see page 7 for further information.

Popular images of chivalrous World War I aviators, goggled with silk scarves flowing, were quite different from the dark reality of the skies above Europe. As the war stalemated across Western Europe and casualties began to mount, aviation became a critical component in war planning and operations. Cutting-edge technology on land, sea, and air ensured that the war of November 1918 little resembled the war of August 1914. This presentation explores how aviation became sophisticated and differentiated into aerial observation, bombardment, and pursuit.

Sept. 30: “English Children of WWII, Part 2 - Those Who Evacuated and Those Who Stayed to Witness the Blitz”

Jenny Davis, Former Evacuee; Retired Occupational Therapist of 30 years

A historical discussion about how America’s pursuit of oil since 1898 has influenced foreign policy.

Oct. 21: “History & Reminiscences of Wichita Stockyard”

Rex Riley, Actor; worked with his father a retired cattleman

Rex will speak from a historical perspective from beginning to the end of the stockyards. Class discussion is encouraged.

Oct. 28: “Dry Bones On the March: he Great Winfield Anti-Saloon Uprising of 1901”

Jerry L. Wallace, Historian & Archivist, Retired from the National Archives in Washington, DC During Carrie Nation’s smashing crusade, the citizens of Winfield, KS, along with local college students, decided the time had come to rid the town of saloons. The city became thoroughly divided, civic leaders were unable to control the situation, and the violence erupted, including the storming and destruction of a local saloon. The situation was so extreme that the “New York Times” newspaper followed it.

Lend a hand!
